

WISE WOMEN USE AI

The AI Business Hub

Pre-Call Workbook

A short workbook to complete before we meet. Your answers shape the hub I build for you, so the call we share is spent on strategic work, not setup.

PLEASE NOTE

Complete this workbook in full before we book your install call.

What is the AI Business Hub?

Your business brain. Built in Notion. Connected to Claude.

Right now, your business probably lives in pieces. Strategy in your head. Content ideas in a notes app. Client information scattered across Gmail threads. Brand assets in Canva. Finances in a spreadsheet you avoid opening.

Every time you open Claude (or any other AI tool), you start from zero. You re-explain who you are, who you serve, what you sell, how you sound. The AI does its best with what you give it, and the output reads generic.

The hub fixes that.

It puts everything about your business in one place. Your strategy, your voice, your offers, your finances, your clients, the ideas you saved at midnight, the things you do not want to lose. Then it connects to Claude through Notion's MCP integration.

The result: when you talk to your AI assistant, it already knows your business. Your voice, your offers, your audience, your priorities. You stop briefing. You start building.

THE SHIFT

“From using an AI tool, to having an AI assistant that actually knows your business.”

What our session will look like

Ninety minutes together on Zoom. By the end of our time, your hub will be built, structured around your actual business, and connected to your AI assistant.

01 Reflect back

I will have read your workbook before we meet. We open by playing back what I have understood about your business, so we begin aligned.

02 Connect Claude to your Notion

Together we set up the Claude-to-Notion connection (MCP). Your AI assistant becomes able to read and update your hub directly.

03 Build your hub structure

I will arrive with a custom prompt written from your workbook. We feed it into Claude, work through the questions it asks, and your hub structure takes shape in real time, in your voice.

04 Tour your hub

I walk you through each section so you know how to navigate it, edit it, and add to it. By the end you will have used it, not just watched it.

05 Set up your Claude Project

We turn your hub into a Claude Project. This is what makes your AI assistant consistent across every conversation, in your business context, in your voice.

06 Close and next steps

We recap what to do this week. Your 14-day support window starts.

How to fill this in

The clearer this workbook is, the more we can do together on the call.

Your answers here let me prep your hub structure in advance, so by the time we meet I already understand your business and can spend our 90 minutes on the strategic work, not setup.

A few practical things

Set aside an hour. You can come back to it across a few sittings, but the goal is to complete it in a few days, not a few weeks.

If typing feels heavy, talk it out. Try Wispr Flow (wisprflow.ai/r?KELLY819) or your phone's voice notes, then paste the transcript into the answer. Talking is often clearer and much faster than writing.

You do not need to have all the answers polished. First-draft thoughts are perfect. Where you do not know, write what you are leaning toward.

When you are done, share the doc back with me. That is when we book the call.

ONE IMPORTANT NOTE

“Your install call cannot be booked until this workbook is back with me. This is not a hoop to jump through. It is what makes our session worth your investment.”

About your business

The basics. Start here.

What is the name of your business?

Your elevator pitch.

In one or two sentences: what you do, who you do it for, and what changes for them when they work with you.

How long have you been doing it?

Are you solo, or do you have help? If you have help, who and in what capacity?

Your website.

If you have one. Drop the URL.

Your social media.

List the handles or URLs of any platforms you actively use (Instagram, LinkedIn, TikTok, Substack, YouTube, anywhere else).

What you sell

List everything you currently sell. Name, price, and format. Add as many rows as you need.

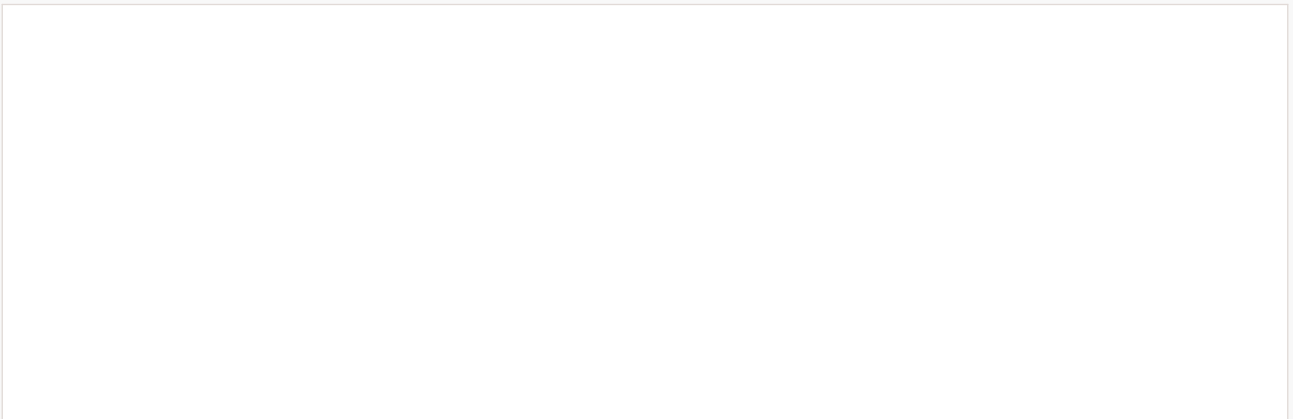

OFFER	PRICE	FORMAT

Who you serve

A clear picture of your ideal client. The more specific you are, the better your hub can speak to them.

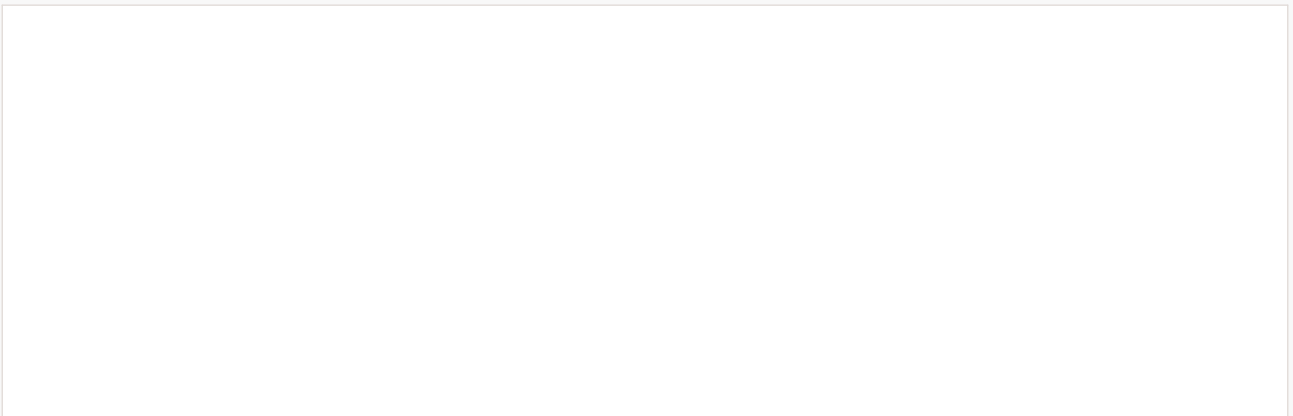

Describe them.

Age range, life stage, location, what they do for work or in their life.

Where do they spend time?

Platforms, communities, people they follow. This shapes the language we use in your hub.

How you currently get clients

This shapes part of how your hub is structured. Tick the option closest to how you actually operate.

- ☐ Marketing-led: I create content, run ads, build email lists. Most clients come from what I publish.
- ☐ Service-led: I sell services to other businesses. Most clients come from referrals, partnerships, or relationships.
- ☐ Product-led: I sell physical or digital products. Most sales come from my store, marketplaces, or launches.
- ☐ In-person or local: I work locally. Most clients come from local networks, in-person events, or walk-ins.
- ☐ A mix of the above

Tell me a bit more.

If you ticked a mix, which ones. If you ticked one, how it actually plays out in your week.

Your voice

How you sound. This becomes the foundation of every piece of content your AI assistant ever writes for you.

Three words that describe how you sound.

Three words that describe how you do not want to sound.

Words and phrases you use often and love.

Words and phrases that make you cringe.

A brand or person whose voice you admire, and why.

Your visual brand

The look that goes with your voice. If you do not have all of this yet, just share what you have.

Your logo.

Drop a link to where it lives (Google Drive, Dropbox, your website), or send the file separately.

Your primary colours.

Hex codes if you have them, or just the names.

Your secondary or accent colours.

Your fonts.

Heading font and body font, plus any script or accent fonts you use.

Any other brand assets worth knowing about?

A brand bible, mood board, style guide, anything else.

The shape of your hub

Every hub has the same foundation. From there, the operational sections are shaped by how your business actually runs. This is where you start telling me what your hub needs to do for you.

UNIVERSAL SECTIONS EVERYONE GETS

- Strategy and Positioning
- Brand and Voice
- Brain Dump
- Financial Command Centre
- Working with Claude

POSSIBLE OPERATIONAL SECTIONS, DEPENDING ON YOUR BUSINESS

- Content (social, blog, newsletter)
- Clients (people you work with)
- Offers and Lead Magnets
- Operations and Systems
- Products (if you sell physical goods)
- Property or Assets
- Team or Suppliers
- Marketing Campaigns

Your turn. What sections or "departments" do you imagine your hub needs?

Don't overthink it. List anything that comes to mind. Use the ones above, add your own, ignore the ones that do not fit. This is just to start the thinking. We will shape the real structure together on the call.

A few last things

Three short questions to wrap up. The catch-all at the end often turns out to be the most useful answer in the whole workbook.

Where are you with AI right now?

Total beginner, dabbled with ChatGPT, used Claude before, built something with projects? Wherever you are is fine, I just want to know what level to pitch our call at.

Tell me about your typical week.

What you do most days, what you do once a week, what you do once a month. This helps me design the rhythm of your hub around how you actually work.

Anything else I should know?

Anything that did not fit elsewhere. The thing you almost did not mention is often the most useful thing in this whole workbook.

Tech you'll need

Three things to confirm before our call. Tick where you are at with each.

Claude Pro.

$20 USD per month. This is non-negotiable for the install. Without it, your assistant cannot connect to your hub.

- ☐ I am on Claude Pro already
- ☐ I will upgrade before our call
- ☐ I need to know more before I commit

Notion account.

Free is fine. notion.com

- ☐ I have one and use it regularly
- ☐ I have one but rarely use it
- ☐ I do not have one yet, I will sign up before our call

Other tools you currently use.

Google Workspace, Microsoft 365, Canva, Kit, ConvertKit, Squarespace, anything worth knowing about.

You're done

Share this back with me when you are ready. I will review it, sketch your hub structure, write your custom prompt, and send you the booking link for our call.

Looking forward to it.
